Clark County | December 2009

SUMMARY | TOTALS

The end of the year finished strong with a fair number of transactions being completed in the market. Large deals at the Thurston 500 Building and Columbia Tech Center accounted for some substantial absorption for the month. In talking with landlords, tenants and brokers, the consensus is that things "feel better" even if the data doesn't necessarily show it. There seems to be continued activity in the marketplace which should hopefully yield a positive start to 2010 as well.

Tenants are still king but they continue to lose ground daily. Make no mistake, concessions are still high with full fees, free rent and rate reductions still the game, but they seem to be tightening just a bit. Fewer businesses are going dark, and others are adjusting their rate instead of their square footages which is preventing additional space from entering the market. December marks the 4th straight month of declining office vacancy in Clark County.
