

OFFICE REPORT

Clark County | January 2010

SUMMARY | TOTALS

There was a fair amount of activity in the marketplace in January. Some tenants grew, others shrank, while many others relocated taking advantage of nicer office space at new, lower rental rates. This type of activity will be very indicative of the market for the months to come as more leases expire and tenants look at their options within the marketplace.

Like the rest of the economy, Clark County's Office Market is still sorting itself out and positioning itself to be healthy eventually down the road. Very few companies appear to be "going dark" in today's market, which was not the case even 12 months ago. Concessions are still higher than ever on lease transactions as landlords attempt to retain existing tenants, while at the same time work to attract new ones.
